Marrigorra Protection Services

WELCOME...

Crime, and organized crime in particular, is a scourge which threatens businesses and their staff all over the world today and, in most cases, the simple reality is that major international corporations and smaller businesses are unequipped to combat every onslaught they face from crime syndicates.

This is understandable, when one considers that businesses are about making money, and not about fighting the crime which plagues them. For this reason, major international crime syndicates view businesses and their key staff as soft targets.

Many junior staff members in a variety of organizations are threatened with their lives on a daily basis, and may be divulging information regarding the movement of your cash, your assets, or your personnel, to people with your worst interests at heart. With all of the possibilities you may be facing, it's good to know that Marrigorra Protection Services operates locally, here in sunny South Africa, wherever your live, and your business concerns may lead you, we provide a variety of pre-emptive and after-the-fact specialized protection services. So, whether you require security officers, investigation and interrogation services, Marrigorra Protection Services offers it all.

Don't let our beautiful country, or our business concerns here be marred by the effects of rampant corruption, lawlessness and spiraling crime.

Marrigorra Protection Services renders the following services:

VIP Protection

We have a team of highly skilled personnel who are available for both low and high profile protection.

With independent South African crime statistics suggesting an increase in the incidents of armed attacks, and with more and more innocent bystanders becoming involved and being injured in the course of armed robberies, the provision of protection services for locals and for international visitors is fast becoming a growing trend.

Undercover agents

There are many subversive elements at work in business today.

Some are there to gather information on your business processes, and to steal your valuable intellectual property from right under your nose. Others are there, bent on destabilising your business by being on-purposefully obstinate and driving your clients away, or by inciting mutiny against your management staff, thereby making your business impossible to run.

Marrigorra Protection Services offers undercover/ informer agent services whereby we infiltrate the ranks within your organization in order to gather intelligence which may be vital for the continued success of your livelihood.

Our agents are trained for the specific purpose of gathering information concerning the operation of any external forces within your business, and to gather data related to the perceptions of your workers, so as to determine problematic areas, including the identification of workers who do just enough to get by.

Director and Security Guards

By consolidating your entire security portfolio, Marrigorra Protection Services can offer you peace of mind in today's climate of spiraling crime and growing public insecurity.

The owner of Marrigorra Protection Services comes from a 17 year policing background, and have many years experience in the field thus giving our clients professional advice regarding all aspects of safety and security.

Our company draws on the combined expertise of numerous ex-military and ex-security forces personnel, ensuring you a tough and disciplined, yet professional presence where it is sorely needed - in the face of any potential security threat.

All our security guards are PSIRA Registered and are trained in all aspects of guarding. We offer under cover, unarmed and armed guards or guards with patrol dogs. Our guards are in full uniform and respectable at all times. On larger sites we will install panic buttons for quick armed response. All our guards are issued with two-way radios and cellular phones for effective communication whilst on duty. Our guards will be issued with O.B. books and shock sticks or batters for the clients peace of mind. Regular and random site visits from a manager of the company will be performed to make sure our guards are on target. Due to our expertise we are able to assist with investigations and special operations. All our vehicles are sign written and clearly marked for the safety of the clients and customers.
